CHAPTER XVI.

Of the making and repealing of Laws.

I. FOR the making of any Law or Statute of the Royal Society, the draught thereof ſhall be read in Council, and put to the vote, on two ſeveral days of their meeting. The firſt day, the queſtion to be reſolved by vote ſhall be to this effect, viz. "Whether the draught of the ſaid Statute, "then agreed upon, ſhall be read at another meeting?" The ſecond day, the queſtion ſhall be to this effect, viz. "Whe-"ther the draught of the ſaid Statute, then agreed upon, ſhall "paſs for a Law, or not?"

II. For the repealing of any Law or Statute, or any part thereof, the Repeal ſhall be propounded and voted in Council, on two ſeveral days of their meeting. The firſt day, the queſtion to be reſolved by Ballot ſhall be to this effect, viz. "Whether the Repeal of ſuch a Statute, or ſuch part thereof, "ſhall be propounded at another meeting?" The ſecond day, the queſtion ſhall be to this effect, viz. "Whether ſuch a "Statute, or ſuch part thereof, ſhall be repealed or not?" And in caſe the ſaid Repeal be agreed unto, the ſame ſhall be recorded in the Journal-book of the Council; and the Statute, or part of the Statute, repealed, ſhall be cancelled in the Statute-book.

FINIS.